

INTERNET AND TEENS

Once upon a time, a boy who liked social networks very much. One day a person he did not know spoke to him and the boy named Marcos was giving him all his information, his name, his age, and more. His family noticed him very much that he was hooked on his mobile but his family did not give him much importance. Until one day that person asked him for a picture of himself, and Marcos said no and since Marcos kept telling him, Marcos ended up telling his parents, when his parents found out they got very angry with Marcos because they had already warned them before not to talk to people he did not know. His parents immediately went to report him to the police station, where the police searched the computers for information on that person and found him, he was a 50-year-old man and the police detained him in a house. And Marcos has already learned the lesson of not talking to strangers

NOTICE: DO NOT TALK TO UNKNOWN PEOPLE WHO MAY PLAY A BAD PASS ON YOU
